PERFORMANCE

● 8-SPEED TRANSMISSION CONVERSION

8HP – One transmission, many possibilities :

With the new gear set concept 8HP only needs 5 shift elements for 4 gear sets. And since only two shift elements are opened per gear, drag losses in the transmission are significantly minimized. At the same time, 8HP only needs 3 multidisk clutches and 2 brakes. As a result, 8HP is more efficient than other concepts. This effect is supported by the use of a new parallel-axis vane cell pump.

More power with less weight

From the lower mid-size car to the sporty luxury segment, and in every SUV - the torque range of 220 to 1,000 Newton meters makes 8HP the perfect choice for all rear and all-wheel concepts. Although 8HP has 2 more gears than 6HP, the dimensions have remained the same while the weight has been reduced by as much as 3%. It now weighs 87 kg with a mid-size 8HP70 transmission including oil. In addition, a total spread of 7.0 always ensures the optimum operating point of the engine - providing greater acceleration with less fuel consumption. More efficiency through less consumption.

The 8HP product family is already well-prepared for more stringent consumption and CO2 guidelines in the future. In upper and middle class vehicles, for example, the optimized 8HP ensures 3% less average consumption and CO2 emissions. This potential can be completely transferred to hybrid drives - without taking any additional savings potential of optimized automatic engine stop functions into consideration.

More technology for less loss

In order to achieve all this progress, we have optimized a number of details of 8HP.

The advantages at a glance:

Reduced drag torques and engine speed to minimize power loss

Greater transmission spacing and lower system pressures.

Multidisk separation of brakes.

New torsional dampers for superior hydrodynamic power transmission and further speed reduction.

This already makes the new 8HP is ideally equipped for future 3- to 8-cylinder engines.

Mechanical & Electrical derangement Warrantee.

We offer a 6 months mechanical warrantee on the transmission provided, the extend of the warrantee is available on request.

PERFORMANCE

• CLUTCH

The stock Toyota clutch is very robust and well matched to the torque output of a 1VD-FTV engine and intended use of the vehicle up to standard GVM and power levels.

In performance and/or increased GVM applications, the engine demands substantial improvement in clutch performance. Safari have engineered a replacement clutch rated to 1100nm of torque which provides a 250% increase in torque capacity whilst maintaining stock driveability characteristics.

X-Series Performance Clutch

- 250% (1100Nm) increased torque capacity
- Designed for increased power, torque and high GVM applications
- Long service life maintains torque capacity within 10% over the wear rate of the clutch disc
- Standard vehicle pedal feel with improved diaphragm lift control
- Safari ARMAX slave cylinder
- OE drive characteristics
- 12 months 20,000km product warranty

The image shows the Safari ARMAX Performance Clutch components, including the red pressure plate, the clutch disc, and the slave cylinder. To the right is a graph titled 'Torque Capacity Comparison: 1VD-FTV Engine' showing Nm Torque on the y-axis (0 to 1100) and Clutch Pedal Stroke on the x-axis (0 to 12). The graph compares the Safari ARMAX Performance Clutch (red line) with the OE Clutch (black line). The Safari clutch maintains a higher torque capacity throughout the pedal stroke, reaching approximately 1100 Nm, while the OE clutch reaches approximately 400 Nm.
